NEWSPAPERS PLAY IMPORTANT PART

Declared Telephone News Man at the State Press Meet at El Paso.

El Paso, Texas, June 9.—Raising the question of proper relations between the corporation and the newspaper, Charles H. Abbott, associate editor of the Southwestern Telephone News, of Dallas, declared in part, before the annual convention of the Texas Press Association here today: "The newspapers of the State owe it to themselves to become better acquainted with their corporations if they are to perform their highest function. As representatives of their readers it is their duty to protect the public from exploitation and error and so to help the Southwest develop along the right lines.

"When the editors of Texas become acquainted with the big companies operating around them they will understand much that is hidden from them now. Only as editorial policy is made to conform to a more accurate appreciation for the true facts can the application of sane popular judgment to the solution of public problems be expected. And there—nowhere else—lies the simple answer to many of the questions which now confront the State, complicated laws and involved theories notwithstanding."

Mr. Abbott declared that the public interest and development of the latent resources of the State and advancement of individual communities depends very largely on the breadth of the consideration given by editors to corporation problems. There are at least two sides to every controversy. And the newspaper, he said, which is very close to being a public utility itself, owes it to the public to reflect conditions in the light of a thorough investigation in which all phases of the issues are indicated.

"should qualify themselves as to be able to distinguish, as well as between right and wrong, expressions of sentiment toward public companies, as between good and bad corporations. This can only be brought about by the exercise of discrimination based upon knowledge. Knowledge of this kind can only be obtained as a point of contact and common confidence is established.

"There must be some one within the corporation who fully appreciates the rights of the public, and understands conditions under which newspapers are published, to represent the newspapers there. This must be a man known to the editors of the State, one in whom they can repose their trust."

FUNERAL OF MR. J. M. HANNA.

The funeral of Mr. J. M. Hanna was conducted this morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence, by his pastor, Rev. Charlton H. Storey, assisted by Rev. C. C. Wheeler. Mr. Hanna and family have been associated with both the Presbyterian and Free Baptist churches since their coming to Bryan, and the music was led by representatives from both congregations. Rev. Storey read an appropriate scripture and led a prayer in behalf of the bereaved family and friends, after which Rev. Wheeler read the obituary and remarked briefly on the beautiful traits of character which adorned the life of the departed. Having a quiet, retiring disposition, only those who were closely associated with Mr. Hanna could appreciate his real strength of character, his simple faith in and earnest devotion to the kingdom of Christ. To know him, however, was not only to love him, but to admire him and esteem him for his integrity of character, and those other qualities which would be conspicuous in the home more than elsewhere. Many friends followed the remains to their last resting place, where the simple and beautiful floral offerings bore an additional tribute to the fragrant memories which shall continue to live in the hearts of those left yet a while longer in the valleys and shadows of the earthly life.

The services at the grave were in charge of Brazos Union Lodge No. 129, Free and Accepted Masons, and in accordance with his own desire, he was laid away with the rites and ceremonies of this ancient and honorable body.

Suspicious Demeanor.

In illustration of the "dreary Glasgow Sunday," Pitt Hardacre, the popular actor-manager, tells this story: He was leaving his hotel in Glasgow one fine Sunday morning when the sun was shining brightly. As he was strolling along George Square a policeman eyed him suspiciously and at last approached and said: "Ye had better tak' care, sir, what ye're doing."

"What am I doing?" inquired Hardacre, and added, with a merry wink. "Why, I'm not even whistling."

"No," replied the Glaswegian, in solemn and reproving tones, "but ye're lookin' almost as happy as if it were Monday."—Exchange.
